GRANVILLE FIRE DEPARTMENT

The Granville Fire Department wants you to stay safe this grilling season!

Many people enjoy barbecuing in the summer months. But when grills are not used safely, things can go horribly wrong. In the past several years, Massachusetts fire departments responded to over 400 fires involving grills, hibachis, and barbecues. These fires caused 20 civilian injuries, three firefighter injuries, and $3.5 million in property damage.

Here are some tips for grilling safely:

- Grills should never be used on a porch, balcony or deck with a roof, overhang or wall.
- Place grills away from the house and deck railings.
- Make sure that the lid of a gas grill is open when you light it. Propane can build up inside and when ignited, the lid may blow off.
- If you smell gas while cooking, turn off and get away from the grill. Call 911 from a safe location. Do not move the grill.
- Always turn off the burners and close the propane cylinder when done cooking. Never leave a burning grill unattended.
- Propane storage: store cylinders upright in an outdoor, shaded area; do not leave cylinders in a vehicle.

Are you ready to grill?

- Check that all connections are tight before turning on the gas.
- Leaks can be detected by dabbing the connections with a solution of soapy water and turning on the gas momentarily. If bubbles occur, there is a leak that must be fixed before the grill is used.
- Clean the grease trap every time you grill.
- Replace propane cylinders that are old, rusty, or showing any other signs of disrepair.

Charcoal Grills

- Use only charcoal starter fluid. Gasoline and kerosene should not be used to start a fire in a grill. Never add lighter fluid to burning briquettes or hot coals. Doing so may cause a flash fire and result in serious burn injuries.
- Charcoal briquettes give off carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless gas that can be deadly. Always use charcoal grills in a well-ventilated area. Never use charcoal grills indoors.
- For proper disposal of grill ashes, allow the coals to burn out completely and then cool for 48 hours before disposal.
- If you must dispose of ashes before they are completely cooled, thoroughly soak them in water before putting them in a metal container.

Woodlands Cemetery Update and History

With the world still in semi-lockdown, we look forward to the Town Meeting for review of our CPA grant applications for Woodlands, Main Road, Northeast, and West Granville cemeteries.

This spring with the ice and wind, Woodlands had one headstone toppled. It belongs to Allie Dickinson, age 9 years 10 days, 3/7/1877 – 3/17/1886. Someone has uprighted it at least temporarily until a professional and permanent solution can be achieved. Other than that, we plan to continue our due diligence and maintenance in caring for our cemetery, for the families and for the town.

June brings to Woodlands an explosion of yellow buttercups. In a country cemetery such as this, with its collection of very old and very new monuments, it is lovely to not mow at certain times of the year. This is one of those times. We will not mow until the end of the month when these flowers have gone by. A black and white picture doesn't show the beauty of it. A color version of the Caller can be seen online in the Caller Collection via the Town website. Better yet, stop by and take a short walk to the top of the hill and enjoy the beauty first hand.

We are indeed very fortunate to live in a town as lovely as Granville. Who hasn't taken a deep breath of appreciation when returning home from anywhere else. Others will express it best:

By reason of its elevated situation, Granville is a region whose atmosphere is remarkably pure and healthful; in witness whereof it may be cited that the town has always been noted for the remarkable longevity attained by many of its inhabitants.

(The) hills of Granville afford scenic views of great beauty and interest, even in this favored part of Massachusetts, where Nature seems to have displayed her most skillful handiwork.

South lane, a road bordered with the lovely clematis, now (August 15th) in full bloom, and the high-bush blackberry just beginning to ripen. A mile and a half from the village down this lane, on a high ridge on the banks of a wild stream, the grand and beautiful view, with a deep, narrow valley below as a foreground, opens through a valley between two mountains in Hertland with a mountain in Parkhamsted in the distance as the background,

1889

The route from Westfield is most of the way steep and rugged, affording many fine and varied views. The ride through the "Narrows" or wooded gorge between the mountains is always cool even in the hottest day, as that wonderful passage seems to act as a sort of an air tunnel.

Woodlands Cemetery Update and History Cont'd

1980

It is a beautiful time, especially in our part of the country. I like to see the hills and valleys turning to red and gold with a hefty sprinkling of evergreens to set them off. I like to see the leaves lazily falling, gradually baring limbs and trunks of the trees with their different colors and patterns of bark. I like to see the flocks of wild geese joyously winging their way south. They carry on such a continuous conversation! I would like to know what they are so happily discussing. Are they telling of a summer well spent, their new broods, conditions in the far places they have been this summer, or are they discussing where to stay tonight, how long before they'll arrive at winter quarters, what pitfalls to look out for on the long journey? They seem to be happy, very interested in life and to have a definite purpose in mind.

1982

To me no other drive can beat that of winding one's way through the Granville Gorge right now where there are several varieties of trees that tend to turn very golden in hue so that, even on cloudy days, the place fairly glows and on sunny days it is almost blinding in its beauty.

"Everyone her is willing to help, you always see a familiar face and that's really cool." "The animals roam around freely and the air is always fresh and clean." "The forests, animals, people, and the apples." "We're all close together. It's small. It's beautiful. It's a good place to raise kids." 2004

As I was driving out of my driveway on the way to work this morning, I spotted a snapping turtle laying her eggs on my neighbor's lawn. I stopped for a few minutes to watch her. She never moved the whole time, her head pointed upward and cocked to one side, surely alert to any predators. I drove along, and there greeted me a little bunny rabbit at the next house. He twitched his furry nose at me and hopped off into the shrubbery. As I rounded the corner, a woodchuck ambled along the base of a stone wall. He seemed aloof as I talked to him through my open window. I smiled to myself the whole way to work, as I was reminded of how fortunate I am to live where I can observe these sweet little creatures in their natural surroundings! I love Granville!

OBITUARY

Gene David "Geno" Dallaire,

Gene, age 61, of Granville, MA and formerly of Windsor, Ellington, and East Hartland, beloved husband for 15 years of Deborah Ann (Repoli) Dallaire, passed away peacefully on Thursday, May 14, 2020, at Bay State Medical Center in Springfield, MA. Born in Hartford on August 1, 1958, son of the late Rosaire and Anita (Dulac) Dallaire, he was raised in Windsor and was a graduate of Windsor High School, Class of 1976. After high school, he enlisted in the US Navy and after he was honorably discharged, he returned to Windsor and took a position at Combustion Engineering. After several mergers and acquisitions, Geno stayed with the company working for ABB, Alstrom Power, and now General Electric, most recently working as a senior mechanical technician in the fossil division with over 37 years of service. Geno credited his success at work and in life to his time in the US Navy. He was a hard worker with many talents and could take on any home or landscaping project including plumbing, electrical, construction jobs. His magnetic personality and his ability to connect with people endeared him to everyone he met. People often commented that he was the type of guy anyone would want in their family. Most of all, Geno will be remembered as a loving husband, father, best friend, and all-around amazing person. He was a gentleman in every sense of the word. Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Capt. Brad John Dallaire, US Army and his wife Katie of Ewa Beach, HI; a grandson, Cohen Dallaire; two stepdaughters, Melissa Cloutier of Enfield and Patricia Cloutier of Southwick, MA; a sister, Patricia Sawyer and her husband John of Lexington, MA; and three nieces, Kate Sawyer and her fiancé James Edwards, Lindsey Sawyer, and Meghan Dallaire.
